

Our History

Here are some photographs we thought you might find interesting. This is what the Metropole looked like during the demolition of the National Trust building. Thanks to Mark and Rita Sinclair for the great photos.

Corner of King Street East and Victoria looking south

Looking west on King Street. The King Edward is just visible on the left.

The rear of the building, looking north west.

Looking north on Victoria Street.

Extracted from a Posting on 29 September 2002

Copyright ©2002 Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation 1170. All rights reserved.
Your use of this web site confirms your agreement to the Terms and Conditions of Use.